

Tell Their Advocacy Story

Now that you are more familiar with the Elements of Fashion Design and you know how to make a circuit, it's time for you to bring them together and sketch an outfit that tells a story.

Choose 1 or more of these clients and design a runway piece that represents their story.

You might want everyone to create a very fast sketch of each story, as practice, and then create some new stories with a class discussion to put more detailed writing into.

Think about color, shape, like, texture and lights as you design.

Story 1 Differences are Not Scary

This student has magical powers but doesn't like to show them off because non magical people become afraid when they find out. Sometimes they even treat this magician badly. From flying to making things disappear, to controlling the weather, there doesn't seem to be a limit to the magic. The student doesn't want to be known as a superhero or anything, but is proud of who he/she is and is always ready to help when needed.

What can this student wear on the runway to tell this story?

Story 2 Nature Child

This student loves the great outdoors and wants people to take care of nature. If there are trees to be saved or trails to be fixed, this student is the first to volunteer. Happiest when camping or backpacking, this student is always prepared for any emergency. Leave No Trace is his/her motto.

What can this student wear on the runway to tell this story?

Story 3 Don't Be A Litter Bug

This student is concerned with the trash on the ground in the neighborhood. In order to be a part of the solution, this student has organized a Saturday cleanup group. Children and adults meet to pickup the trash they find as they walk the streets.

What can this student wear on the runway to tell this story?