

Tell Their Story Using the Elements of Fashion Design

Now that you are more familiar with the Elements of Fashion Design and you know how to make a circuit, it's time for you to bring them together and sketch an outfit that tells a story.

Choose 1 or more of these clients and design a runway piece that represents their story.

You might want everyone to create a very fast sketch of each story, as practice, and then create some new stories with a class discussion to put more detailed writing into.

Think about color, shape, like, texture and lights as you design.

Story 1 Organic Pizza

The local pizza shop needs a new outfit for the employees! The pizza shop sells all natural, organic ingredients, and their store shows their love of nature. They have a lot of ingredients that you don't see at other stores, and want customers to trust them in trying something new, healthy, and delicious.

What could their employees wear? Make sure to use color, line, shape and texture as you make design decisions.

Story 2 Desert Racers

The student track and field team competes in a lot of foot races. The school is in the desert which is hot in the summer but cold and dry in the winter. The students are an excellent team, and win most of their races. They agree they love the desert, but each student loves something different. Some love animals like rabbits and coyotes. Some love the beautiful colorful sunsets. Other students have different ideas.

What could these students wear? Make sure to use color, line, shape and texture as you make design decisions.
