

Tell Their Story Using the Elements of Fashion Design

Now that you are more familiar with the Elements of Fashion Design and you know how to make a circuit, it's time for you to bring them together and sketch an outfit that tells a story.

Choose 1 or more of these clients and design a runway piece that represents their story.

You might want everyone to create a very fast sketch of each story, as practice, and then create some new stories with a class discussion to put more detailed writing into.

Think about color, shape, like, texture and lights as you design.

Story 1 Social Media

A student's best friend moves to a school in the next district. It's not far, but they no longer see each other every day. To stay in contact, the students use technology! Text messages of course, but also they draw together online, the video chat during lunchtimes, sometimes they play games together. They also share a lot of funny videos and pictures that they find.

The student notices that many students have friends outside the school, but don't keep in touch with them. How can they promote staying connected through technology? What is a hat, jacket, or original clothing design that could help them introduce other students to these ideas?

Story 2 Nature Child

This student loves the great outdoors and wants other students to experience it as well. But many students have never been to a mountain or ocean, and don't care to try because they don't know how awesome it is!

Happiest when camping or backpacking, this student wishes that others could get just a taste of the great outdoors to inspire more interest. What can this student wear on the runway to tell this story?

Story 3 Sports

This student loves sports! Baseball, gymnastics, running, soccer, frisbee - you name they love to play it! A lot of students at school spend time on their phones watching videos or chatting with friends. This student wants to tell a story that sports are fun. They see lots of sports clothing worn by adults and students in other schools, but not this one.
